Blair, TCDC President/CEO; Front Row (L to R) Susan Ziemak, TCRLF Committee/First Heritage Federal Credit Union; Marsha Jones, First Citizens National Bank; Chris Kozuhowski, Owner, The Wellsboro House; David Lamphier, TCDC 1st Vice Chair/Dominion Transmission, Inc.; Laura Kozuhowski, Owner, The Wellsboro House and Susan Dillon, TCRLF Committee/University of Scranton SBDC.

On Friday, March 28, 2008, TCDC closed on its third Tioga County Revolving Loan Fund loan to Chris and Laura Kozuhowski of The Wellsboro House located in Wellsboro, PA. The $25,000 loan will be utilized, along with financing from First Citizens National Bank, to assist in the renovations and purchase of machinery and equipment. Chris stated, "We are extremely excited about participating in the TCRLF. We feel by doing this, we are contributing to our local economy and community."

The Tioga County Development Corporation (TCDC), in conjunction with Northern Tioga School District, recently offered a basic welding training program. Hosting a full class of ten (10) individuals, Marty Heyler, a vocational teacher at Cowanesque Valley High School, instructed the five (5) week, hands on program. Participants learned safety, stick & mig welding and cutting. Deane Center: $500,000 Grant Application Submitted for Renovations building for retail and service space, some residential lofts and storage facilities for the Performing Arts Center. The Main Street Exterior will be restored to historic conditions and an elevator will be included to serve all three stories.

The Main Street exterior of The Deane Center for the Performing Arts will be renovated to historic conditions.

The grant was submitted through the Tioga County Enterprise Zone Loan Program (TCEZ). The Borough of Wellsboro is a participating municipality in the TCEZ. As the loan to the Deane Center for the Performing Arts is repaid to TCDC, the monies will be put into a Revolving Loan Fund (RLF) for for-profit business in the Central Business District of Wellsboro Borough.

Pennsylvania's New Communities/Anchor Building Program provides grant-to-loan funds to restore strategic buildings in downtown areas. The funds are to be used specifically for acquisition costs or physical building improvements.

The Tioga Count Development Corporation (TCDC) submitted a $500,000 Anchor Building Grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Community and Economic Development (DCED) for Phase One renovation and historic restoration of the Deane Center for the Performing Arts on Main Street in Wellsboro in October 2007.

The Phase One project is estimated at $1,700,000 that will renovate most of the Dominion Announces Major Project

In June 2007, Dominion announced the Storage Factory Project, which would expand its natural gas storage capacity by up to 50 billion cubic feet (Bcf). The Storage Factory Project would integrate the high deliverability of storage in salt formations with the large capacity of depleted reservoir storage. The result is an efficient, reliable operation that will bring competitive and flexible gas storage services to customers in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic market areas.

The first phase will add 11.2 Bcf of new natural gas storage. Initial construction is scheduled for 2009, when work will begin on two salt caverns to be added to the existing fleet of depleted reservoirs. The salt caverns will be in Tioga County, Pennsylvania.

"The future of natural gas storage is here," said Thomas F. Farrell II, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Dominion. "The blending of capacity from traditional depleted reservoir storage and deliverability from salt caverns represents an exciting growth opportunity for Dominion's storage assets. Salt cavern storage is common in the producing area, but we are building this infrastructure close to the market area, where its advantages—high-deliverability, flexibility and expandability—will bring needed supplies to the market quickly, especially during peak weather conditions."

Dominion will leach salt out of deep, underground formations to form caverns where gas can be stored at pressures typically higher than the depleted natural gas storage fields common in the Northeast market area. Gas can be repeatedly injected and withdrawn from the caverns, bringing great flexibility to the system in the winter. The salt cavern storage will be coupled with additional, lower-deliverability storage facilities to provide a flexible, reliable mix of gas storage service offerings.

The project is subject to approval by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. The anticipated in-service date for the first two caverns is 2014.

"The demand for clean, natural gas is growing throughout the Northeast and the Mid-Atlantic," said Paul Koonce, chief executive officer of Dominion Energy. "We are calling it the Storage Factory Project because we can construct new storage facilities as the demand for natural gas grows."

The plan calls for a compressor station for injection and withdrawal, as well as pipelines needed to get the natural gas to market. Dominion expects the project will create 75 to 100 full-time positions in north central Pennsylvania, with an additional 200 construction jobs during the first two years. Depending on how many caverns are constructed, the project would cost between $500 million and $700 million.

"The nation needs new sources of natural gas, both for the energy it provides and its environmental qualities," said U.S. Rep. John E. Peterson, who represents the Fifth District of Pennsylvania. "As we develop those sources, natural gas storage becomes increasingly important. The Storage Factory Project can provide the storage we need for the future."

"Pennsylvania has historically been a keystone state for storing and delivering natural gas throughout the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic regions," said Pennsylvania State Senate President Pro Tempore Joe Scarnati, who represents the 25th State Senatorial District. "The Storage Factory Project enhances the state's role in natural gas storage and brings needed jobs to the Tioga County area."

Dominion is one of the nation's largest producers of energy, with a portfolio of more than 26,500 megawatts of generation and 7,800 miles of natural gas transmission pipeline. Dominion also owns and operates the nation's largest underground natural gas storage system with about 960 billion cubic feet of storage capacity and serves retail energy customers in 11 states.
